

Intercon ^①

Pau Claris 87

Location: Barcelona, Spain

Year: 2014

Status: Completed

Program: Residential Apartments

Corridor

Refurbishment of an office space of 400 square meters into four apartments of 80 and 100 square meters, located in Pau Claris street in the center of Barcelona. The traditional architecture and interiors amalgamate the ideas which made Catalan architects and designers renowned, and this project wants to pay homage to them and also to update and reinterpret the interior design language to our current times.

The concept celebrates the aesthetics traditionally seen in the interior design of the flats of the Eixample district by preserving and recuperating several features which link the apartments with its architectural history. A clear example of this is the recovery of hydraulic tiles across the flooring, the original geometric mouldings in the ceilings, and using the Modernist box-shaped structure in the doors, which adds a very distinct personality to the spaces.

Living room

Ceiling details

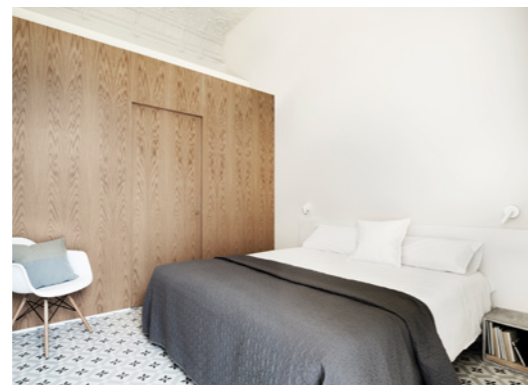

Hydraulic tiles

Brightness is maximized by the extensive use of white on wall hues and kitchen fittings and by integrating living and cooking areas in one unique space, making the most of the living areas. The furniture mixes Catalan and Scandinavian styles to create a contemporary lifestyle in one of the most cultural neighbourhoods of the Catalan capital

Luxurious in the finishing, choice of materials and lifestyle, the overall look for these refurbished, serviced apartments, follows a contemporary style where clean lines, interesting geometrical partitions and the recovery of local architectural features, reflect the "local" spirit of the city, a perfect home for those who have a keen eye on interior design and appreciate well-thought, and carefully executed interior design.

Bedrooms

Bedrooms

